Dear Sir / Madam,

We have great pleasure to inform you that the IRDF & SKAIL are going to organize an International Seminar on "Global Environmental Issues: Challenges to Industry, Ecology and Society" at Kalyani on December 24 - 25, 2011. This seminar may provide an important forum for interaction of ideas amongst academicians, research scholars, professionals and industry representatives on issues related to environment. It is our privilege to invite you in the seminar and request you to contribute papers on the provided themes/sub-themes. Please share this information with your colleagues and peers.
Regards

Dr. Sudipta Sarkar &
Mrs. Paramita Dhar(Chakraborty)
Joint Organising Secretaries

Climate

Weather at Kalyani during the last week of December will be pleasant. Temperature range will be 10-25°C. The delegates are therefore suggested to bring light woolen garments.

Route Direction from Kolkata

Kalyani, a satellite town is located within 45-50 kms. from Kolkata airport or from Sealdah railway station. From Sealdah railway station or from Dum Dum railway station any train on main line will reach to Kalyani. Then avail auto, bus or rickshaw to reach the venue. On arrival, contact the Seminar Helpdesk at the Kalyani railway station.

IRDF

Integrated Research and Development Foundation (IRDF) is a non- government and not-for-profit organization of academicians and professionals dedicated to promote socio-economic research and to undertake different types of developmental activities for the society. Founded during 2010-2011 under the Societies Registration Act 1961, its mission is to become an active partner in various developmental activities of the society through research and development initiatives.

SKAIL

Snehangshu Kanta Acharya Institute of Law (SKAIL) was established by Sikkim Bengal Educational Trust in 2004 with affiliation to the University of Kalyani. The primary objective of SKAIL is advancement of learning, teaching, research and dissemination of knowledge of law.

The Concept Note

Substantial scientific evidence indicates that an increase in the global average temperature and unpredictable behaviour of the present environment poses severe risks to natural systems, human health and well-being. Thus environmental issues and challenges to handle those issues are a matter of high concern not only for natural and social scientists but also for layman at large.

In light of this evidence, more than 180 nations under the UNFCCC are committed to bring about the stabilization of environment by restricting emission of Greenhouse Gases. In such a scenario, the developing countries in particular, are to be able to reconcile economic imperatives with environmental sustainability. In this backdrop the present seminar is a platform to discuss the environmental issues and challenges from different perspective and to create awareness in this regard. The outcome of the seminar is expected to help in formulating policies and may address issues that will open gateway to further research.

Sub-Themes

- Global Environmental Problems: Issues and Challenges
- Environmental Challenges and Society's Response
- Ecological imbalance and Environmental challenges
- Contemporary Corporate Policies and Reporting Aspects of Environmental Issues
- Climate Change: Inter-play of Natural and Social Scientific Knowledge
- Contemporary Eco-critical Discourses
- Socio-legal Environmental Discourses
